Intensive Training and Practice: Routines: Focused observation of practice.

Take note of the specific routines they use for the start of a lesson and transitions between activities.

Routines and Prompts to Look For:	Observations
Routine one: Entry Procedures • How does the teacher welcome students at the start of the lesson? • Are there any visual cues or sign for entry expectations? • How do the students enter the classroom? • How does the teacher manage late arrivals? • Is there a seating plan, do the students sit in their assigned places and how seating changes are managed? • Does the teacher have to adapt the routine for any individual pupils?
Routine two: Transitions Between Activities • How does the teacher manage transitions between different activities? • Do students smoothly transition between tasks? • How does the teacher manage the time between activities? • How does the teacher gain the attention of the class? • Does the teacher have to adapt the routine for any individual pupils?
Routine three: The End of the Lesson • How does the teacher end the lesson? • How do the students prepare to leave the classroom? • Are there any routines for summarising the learning? • Does the teacher have to adapt the routine for any individual pupils?
Additional Notes and Comments Relate your observations to the theoretical basis for routines and other discussions you have had during your ITaP week.
